

Some considerations when designing student systems & services

- View experience from customer perspective
- Identify and improve customer experience at “moments of truth” & pain points
- Design system as part of a process, not in siloes.